Rahul Gandhi Playing into the Hands of Foreign Powers

Agency, New Delhi

Congress leader and Leader of the Opposition in the Lok Sabha, Rahul Gandhi, on Wednesday alleged that 2.5 million fraudulent votes were cast in last year's Haryana elections, amounting to 'vote theft'. Rejecting this, the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) termed the allegations baseless. At a press conference held at the BJP headquarters on Wednesday, Union Minister and BJP leader Kiren Rijiju said that Congress leader Rahul Gandhi is making false and illogical claims to hide his failures. He said that voting is taking place in Bihar in two days, but today Rahul Gandhi was narrating a story about Haryana. This clearly shows that there is no issue left in Bihar, so the Haryana issue is being fabricated to divert attention. Rahul Gandhi is saying that the exit polls showed the Congress winning. During the 2004 elections, the exit polls and opinion polls were also predicting a victory for the BJP and NDA, but the counting results showed the NDA losing. We accepted the result and congratulated the UPA, but we did not abuse the Election Commission. In a democracy, both victory and defeat have to be accepted. He said that when the exit polls are in favor of the Congress, they applaud them, and when they go against them, they abuse the media. He said that when the elections were underway in Haryana, senior Congress leader Kumari Selja herself had said that the Congress would not be able to win there because its own leaders wanted to defeat the party. After this, a former Congress minister resigned and clearly stated that the Congress lost in Haryana because its leaders were not working at the grassroots level. He asked how the Congress could win when the state president, Rao Narendra Singh, himself admitted that there was no coordination at the grassroots level within the Congress party? Their own leaders are saying that the Congress lost because of its

Rahul Gandhi alleges 2.5 million fake votes stole Congress's victory in Haryana elections, now fears similar conspiracy in Bihar

New Delhi, Former

Congress president and Leader of the Opposition in the Lok Sabha, Rahul Gandhi, held a press conference titled 'H Files' at Indira Bhawan in New Delhi on Wednesday, leveling serious allegations of large-scale vote rigging in the Haryana elections. He also expressed apprehension that what happened in Haryana could now be repeated in Bihar. This press conference took place just before the first phase of polling for 121 assembly seats in Bihar on Thursday. Rahul Gandhi alleged that approximately 2.5 million fake voters were created in Haryana and that it was a case of organized vote theft. He claimed that this fraud was not carried out at a local level, but at a higher level. He said that there are a total of approximately two crore voters in Haryana, of which every eighth voter is fake. Giving figures, he said that 25,41,144 votes own shortcomings, so who will believe Rahul Gandhi's claim that they lost due to vote theft? Kiren Rijiju said are fake in Haryana. These include 5,21,619 duplicate voters, 93,174 invalid addresses, and 19,26,351 bulk voters. In addition, Form-6 (adding names) and Form-7 (removing names) were also misused on a large scale, but the Election Commission has now blocked access to this data. Rahul Gandhi stated that this matter is extremely serious because despite such massive vote theft, the Congress party lost by a margin of only 22,779 votes. He said that the election results were manipulated in a planned manner. The Congress leader showed a picture of a Brazilian model and claimed that the same photo was used to cast votes 22 times at several that many people within the Congress party are unhappy. Many people in Bihar are saying that Rahul Gandhi booths in Haryana under different names. He said that this model is registered in the voter list sometimes as 'Seema', sometimes as 'Saraswati', and sometimes as 'Sweeti'. He further stated that the photo of the same woman was repeated 223 times at two booths in Haryana. It is also alleged that a man named Shashank Giri voted 14 times at booths number 431 and 508, while two brothers, Rudrabhishik Jain and Naman Jain, cast 18 votes at booths 130 and 131. Rahul Gandhi stated that the Election Commission could easily identify all the fake voters with similar photos or addresses through a simple process, but it is not doing so. Rahul Gandhi also played a video of Haryana Chief Minister Nayab Singh Saini at the press conference, in which Saini is seen saying before the results were announced that "the BJP is forming a government with a clear majority."

should not come there to campaign because his presence will ruin even the remaining chances.

NDA returning to power in Bihar with a two-thirds majority: Rajnath Singh

Agency, Patna/Banks

Defense Minister Rajnath Singh, while addressing an election rally in Banka, Bihar, in support of the National Democratic Alliance (NDA) candidate, claimed that the Nitish Kumar-led NDA is returning to power in the state with a two-thirds majority. He also targeted all the parties included in the Grand Alliance, including the Congress. Targeting the Congress, Rajnath Singh said that the Congress never wanted better roads in the border areas. The Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD) also did not want development in Bihar. Rajnath Singh attacked Rahul Gandhi for politicizing the army and said that soldiers only follow one religion, which is "military dharma." Do not drag our army into politics. Whenever this country has faced a crisis, our soldiers have held India's head high by displaying their bravery and valor. During his address, he said that reservation should exist. We (BJP) are also supporters of reservation. We have given reservation to the poor. Rajnath Singh said that Prime Minister Narendra Modi has ended the anti-development mindset in the country's politics. When Modi ji took power, the Indian economy was in 11th place in the world. Today it is in fourth place and will soon reach third place. Rajnath Singh said that not a single allegation of corruption has been leveled against Nitish Kumar to date, while all the leaders of the RJD, from the bottom to the top, are facing corruption cases. He said that during the RJD rule, Bihar's health budget was only Rs 700 crore, which has now increased to Rs 20,000 crore under the NDA government. This is proof of how serious the government is about the health of the people. He said that today Bihar's budget is more than Rs 3 lakh crore, which is writing a saga of development. Rajnath Singh said that the NDA never discriminates against people on the basis of caste, creed, and religion. We only talk about development, while the Grand Alliance only works to divide people in the name of caste, religion, and language. The Defence Minister said that Operation Sindoar has not been stopped, and if terrorists try to attack India again, we will give a strong response.

Supreme Court delivers setback to Centre on MNREGA, scheme to resume in Bengal

Agency, New Delhi

Just days after facing a setback in the Supreme Court regarding the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Scheme (MNREGA), the Ministry of Rural Development has decided to consider restarting the scheme in West Bengal under special conditions. The TMC-led government had been continuously appealing to the Centre to restart the scheme, which had been suspended for three years. Now, it may be resumed. Media reports, citing sources, stated that the ministry had informed the PMO last week that it could consider restarting MNREGA in West Bengal under special circumstances. The PMO had sought a detailed report from the ministry on this issue. This development comes after the Supreme Court dismissed the Centre's special leave petition on October 27.

The Centre had challenged the Calcutta High Court's order of June 18, which directed the implementation of the MNREGA scheme in West Bengal from August 1, 2025. Before the Supreme Court, the High Court had given the central government the authority to impose special conditions, restrictions, and rules for the implementation of the scheme in the state to prevent any irregularities in the future. The Centre had challenged this order and filed a petition in the Supreme Court on July 31, a day before the High Court's order was to come into effect.

No More Arbitrary Pension Cuts Government Takes Big Decision Regarding Central Government Employees and Pensioners

Agency, New Delhi

The central government has provided relief to millions of central government employees and pensioners by clarifying that once a pension/family pension has been authorized (finalized), it will not be subject to deductions unless a clear clerical or calculation error is proven. This order has been issued by the Department of Pension and Pensioners' Welfare under the Ministry of Personnel, Public Grievances and Pensions. According to the new system, if any error is found in a pension or family pension more than two years after it has been sanctioned, it will be mandatory to obtain approval from the Department of Pension and Pensioners' Welfare before making any deductions. The department further stated, 'This applies if such an error is found more than two years after the date the pension was fixed or revised.' This step is significant because previously, departments often reduced pensions or sent recovery notices citing erroneous calculations, even many years after retirement. This practice will now be stopped. What if excess pension is received due to an error? It has also been clarified that if a pensioner has received an overpayment due to an error, and it was not due to their fault or incorrect information, the concerned ministry will have to decide whether the amount should be recovered or waived.

A horrific train accident occurred in Bilaspur, Chhattisgarh, on Tuesday evening. A passenger train (MEMU) traveling from Gevra Road to Bilaspur collided with a stationary goods train. The death toll in this accident has risen to 11, while 20 passengers were injured. The South East Central Railway has attributed the cause of the accident to a signal overshoot. The injured have been admitted to hospitals in Bilaspur, and rescue operations are underway. Amidst the screams and chaos in the wreckage, a young child's life was saved. The parents of this child, who was injured in the accident, have not yet been traced. When the railway administration and local people started the relief operation, this innocent child was found injured near the wreckage. He was immediately admitted to the railway hospital, where he is undergoing treatment. The tragic part is that the child's parents have not yet been found. Pakistan in Panic After Operation Sindoar, Monitoring Every Activity Closely

The neighboring country, a haven for terrorists, is constantly apprehensive about what kind of trouble India might unleash next. Since Operation Sindoar, Pakistan has been closely monitoring every Indian military activity. The Indian Army, Navy, and Air Force are conducting joint exercises, which has caused considerable unease in Pakistan, especially within the army. Islamabad is currently reeling from a two-pronged attack. On one hand, the Tehrik-i-Taliban Pakistan (TTP) is continuously carrying out attacks, while on the other hand, Baloch insurgents are inflicting constant blows. The Pakistani army and police are being completely unsuccessful in dealing with this. On the other hand, India is conducting joint armed exercises from the desert to the sea, which has created panic in the neighboring country. The statement by the Director General of Inter-Services Public Relations (ISPR), Lieutenant General Ahmed Sharif Chaudhry, is a result of this frustration. In light of this, Pakistan is issuing a flurry of NOTAMs (Notice to Airmen). Intelligence and media analysts suggest that internal pressure and strategic vulnerability are behind this statement. Pakistan is facing challenges such as internal law and order issues, TTP activity, and attacks in Balochistan, making it necessary to project a message of national unity. The ISPR statement is considered a step in this direction. As a sign of security preparedness, Pakistan has issued a NOTAM closing large parts of its southern airspace, along with coastal areas, from November 1st to November 30th. According to analysts, this move may be related to potential sea-based live-fire or missile tests during the Trishul exercise. Pakistan is also facing widespread conflict on its border with Afghanistan.

Kartik Purnima Witnesses Massive Devotional Gathering in Kolhan; Thousands Take Holy Dip at Swarnrekha, Kharkai, and Karo River Ghats

Correspondent

Jamshedpur: On the auspicious occasion of Kartik Purnima on Wednesday, Kolhan saw an extraordinary confluence of devotion and faith. From early morning, thousands of devotees thronged the ghats of rivers across East Singhbhum, West Singhbhum, and Seraikela-Kharsawan districts to perform sacred rituals. Before sunrise, pilgrims immersed themselves in the cool waters and worshiped Lord Vishnu, Lord Shiva, and Mother Ganga with utmost reverence. At the Domuhani Sangam in Jamshedpur, where the Swarnrekha and Kharkai rivers meet, devotees lined up from the Brahma Muhurta (early dawn hours) for a holy dip. Men, women, and children in traditional attire performed prayers, offered til, rice, fruits, clothes, and food, earning spiritual merit. It is believed that bathing in the sacred rivers on Kartik

Purnima absolves all sins and grants the blessings of a year-long holy bath. Similarly, at the Karo River ghat near Guwa Bazaar in West Singhbhum, devotees began gathering from 3 AM onwards. Women floated small lamps in banana leaves and paper boats, praying for the well-being of their families, society, and the nation. After bathing, devotees proceeded to the Shiv Temple at Kusum Ghat to offer milk, betel leaves, and Ganga water to Lord

Shiva. The temple resonated with chants of "Har Har Mahadev" and "Jai Shri Hari" throughout the day. According to Pandit R.K. Mishra, as per the Vishnu Purana, Lord Vishnu awakens from Yog Nidra in the month of Kartik, making bathing, prayers, and charitable deeds especially auspicious during this time, bringing peace, prosperity, and spiritual upliftment to devotees. Kartik Purnima, also known as Tripurari Purnima, commemorates the victory of the gods over the demon Tripurasura, when Lord Shiva destroyed the demon, symbolizing the triumph of good over evil. This year, it was observed on 5th November 2025. For safety and smooth conduct, the administration made special arrangements at the river ghats. Police personnel and volunteers guided devotees, managed traffic, and ensured cleanliness. Several social organizations facilitated prasad distribution, drinking water, and first aid. As evening descended, the riverbanks were illuminated with the golden glow of floating lamps. Devotional chants and bhajans filled the air, creating a spiritually vibrant atmosphere. Kartik Purnima this year once again showcased the deep-rooted faith, spirituality, and cultural tradition of Kolhan, lighting up the region with divine devotion. Hemant Soren government fails on all fronts, betrays people: AJSU

Ranchi. The All Jharkhand Students' Union (AJSU) in Jharkhand has accused the Hemant Soren government of betraying the state's people and failing on all fronts. AJSU General Secretary Sanjay Mehta issued a press release on Wednesday, stating that the state government has lost the moral ground to seek votes due to its failures. He said that the government has completely failed on crucial issues such as jobs, employment, displacement, rehabilitation, education, law and order, and social justice. He said that the people of Jharkhand had elected this government with a huge majority and hoped that it would protect their interests, but the government has disappointed them at every step. The government has ignored major promises such as job creation, local policy, and reservation in the private sector. Furthermore, no concrete steps have been taken on issues such as teacher recruitment, prevention of migration, failure to stop paper leaks, and regularization of contract workers. Mehta asked why the government has remained silent on crucial issues such as implementing the PESA Act, recognizing the Sarna Code, and implementing OBC reservations. The government is not taking initiative on these aspects.

Key Delhi air monitor went dark in peak farm fire week

NEW DELHI, Agency: The government model that tracks pollution sources in Delhi went quiet for four days during the first week of November—historically, some of the period when smoke from agricultural burning contributes most heavily to the capital's toxic air—and was updated only after HT asked authorities about the missing data.

The Decision Support System (DSS), which estimates how much different sources contribute to Delhi's PM 2.5 levels, last provided data on Friday. When the system finally updated late on Tuesday evening, it revealed no stubble burning contribution data for November 1 and 2.

Past data shows stubble burning's contribution to Delhi's air has historically surged above 35% during the first week of November, reaching as high as 48% on a single day in 2021. This year's readings show just 4.06% on Monday and 1.74% on Tuesday.

Last year on November 1, farm fires accounted for 35.1% of Delhi's PM 2.5 pollution. The contribution remained at 35% till November 3 in both 2023 and 2022, according to DSS records.

The Indian Institute of Tropical Meteorology in Pune, which operates the model, and the Commission for Air Quality Management did not respond to queries on Tuesday about the data gap.

Harvesting and farm fires are likely delayed this year following widespread floods in Punjab, but burning has been rising in recent days. Punjab recorded 256 fires on Sunday while Haryana logged a season-high 23 fires the same day.

To be sure, the region appears to have mostly been spared of an air pollution crisis also due to more active weather conditions that usual.

"We have seen wind speeds remain high so far—the speed is enough for dispersion. At the same time, Diwali was earlier than usual this year and farm fires are low, so we are not seeing the kind of emissions we usually see in early November," said Dipankar Saha, former head of CPCB's air laboratory. But he warned that if wind speeds drop again, it will eventually lead to accumulation of pollutants over time.

The DSS typically provides daily source contribution estimates along with a two-day forecast. It calculates pollution contributions from Delhi's own emissions and 19 neighbouring NCR towns, with stubble burning percentages updated later based on actual fire counts.

The system showed Delhi's transport sector contributed 19.91% to Tuesday's PM 2.5 levels, followed by emissions from Jhajjar at 6.54% and Gautam Buddha Nagar at 6.15%.

The DSS blackout is part of a broader pattern of monitoring failures this year. On Diwali night, nine of Delhi's 39 air quality monitoring stations stopped recording data entirely during critical hours between 11 p.m. and 4 a.m. — the second-highest number of such failures since 2021.

"Transparency is important when we talk about fighting pollution," said Sunil Dahiya, founder and lead analyst at environmental think tank Envirocatalysts.

Dahiya, however, pointed to other problems with the DSS. "With an outdated emissions inventory, it seems none of the agencies and bodies which should be using this data are utilising it, which explains the semi-frequent updates in between."

The model continues to run on an outdated 2021 emissions inventory, officials have acknowledged, raising doubts about forecast accuracy. The system was operationalised on October 5 ahead of the winter pollution season—the same inventory issue that prompted CAQM to halt it last year and request improvements from IITM.

During last winter, DSS data was available from the start of October till November before going dark until December 9. CAQM said at the time it would not use the system for pollution-related decisions because the emissions inventory was too old, though the model would continue sharing information.

At least three major real-time source identification studies have been halted or rendered obsolete in the past four years. In 2021, the Delhi government stopped a study by Washington University before its data was made public, citing "unsatisfactory" results. The work was reassigned to IIT Kanpur the same year, but that two-year study ended in November 2023 with the government again dissatisfied with methodologies and results. No replacement system has been established.

"It is a model which ticks a lot of boxes, but eventually, is turning out to be a waste of funds, unless our data is running on a new emissions inventory and is updated regularly," Dahiya said.

At UNESCO meet, India calls for ethical AI education access, heritage cooperation

New Delhi, Agency: India outlined its agenda on ethical artificial intelligence, digital education, and cultural heritage at the 43rd General Conference of UNESCO, where Ambassador Vishal V Sharma said the country's focus was on "education, ethics, and equity" as part of its Viksit Bharat vision for 2047.

The 43rd General Conference, being held in Uzbekistan from October 30 to November 13, is UNESCO's highest decision-making body, setting the agency's programmes and budget for 2026-2027.

Sharma, India's Permanent Delegate to UNESCO, said India is working with UNESCO on the Readiness Assessment Methodology (RAM) to map national preparedness for ethical and responsible AI, and pointed to a sequence of India-based consultations held with the ministry of electronics and information technology (MeitY) and IndiaAI Mission. The RAM initiative is designed to help countries assess strengths and gaps for deploying AI in line with UNESCO's Recommendation on the Ethics of AI. He said India's National Quantum Mission and a $29 billion AI sector "are expected to create over one million professionals by 2026", alongside a $10 billion semiconductor mission aimed at building digital self-reliance.

Referring to India's education reforms, Sharma said the National Education Policy promotes online learning through platforms such as SWAYAM, DIKSHA, Bhashini, and PM eVidya, developed under the G20 and UNESCO frameworks.

Paratrooper injured in gunfight between terrorists and security forces in J&K's Kishtwar

NEW DELHI, Agency: A paratrooper was injured and airlifted to a hospital in Jammu and Kashmir's Udhampur after a gun battle broke out between terrorists and security forces on Wednesday in the Kishtwar district.

Officials said that the encounter started after the Jammu and Kashmir Police, with help from the Indian Army, launched a joint operation in the Chhatri area based on intelligence about terrorists in the region.

The search operation began in the early morning, after which security forces came under fire, resulting in an exchange of gunfire.

The White Knight Corps posted on X, "In an intelligence-based operation, launched in coordination with the Jammu and Kashmir Police early this morning, alert troops of the White Knight Corps established contact with terrorists in the general area of Chhatri."

"The operation is in progress," the post added.

The security forces are closely monitoring terrorist movements in the mountainous district, leading to several encounters along the border of Doda and Udhampur districts.

Notably, Kishtwar has witnessed six encounters over the past seven months as troops continue searching for Pakistan-based terrorists hiding in the hills.

On September 21, a group of terrorists clashed with forces in the Chhatri area. On September 13, two army personnel, including a junior commissioned officer, died and two others injured in an encounter in the Naidgram area of Chhatri.

Violent confrontations also happened in the Dul and Chhatri belts on August 11 and July 2, though the terrorists managed to escape.

On May 22, one soldier and two terrorists died during a clash in Chhatri. Further, on April 12, three terrorists were killed in Kishtwar, while the army prevented an infiltration attempt along the LoC in the Akhnoor sector.

Woman, her partner get 180-year jail term for assault of minor girl in Kerala

NEW DELHI, Agency: A couple convicted for repeated sexual assault of a minor girl was sentenced with 180 years of imprisonment each by a Special Protection of Children from Sexual Offences (POCSO) court in Kerala's Manjeri on Tuesday. The accused in the case was a woman, who reportedly had eloped with her lover and her 11-year-old daughter to Malappuram, where they resided in a rented cottage. There, with the aid and help of the mother, her lover sexually assaulted the little girl for two years, from 2019-2021. He not only raped her, but also forced her into oral sex," Somasundaram said.

The couple has also been fined with ₹11.75 lakh each and failure to pay the fine would lead to an added prison sentence of 20 years, according to an ANI news agency report.

the court has convicted both of the accused—180 years of rigorous imprisonment and ₹11.75 lakh," Special

Public Prosecutor Somasundaram told the news agency.

This case was registered by Malappuram Police against the mother and her lover. Originally living in Thiruvananthapuram, the mother eloped with her lover and her 11-year-old daughter to Malappuram, where they resided in a rented cottage. There, with the aid and help of the mother, her lover sexually assaulted the little girl for two years, from 2019-2021. He not only raped her, but also forced her into oral sex," Somasundaram said.

The verdict was given by Special POCSO Court Judge Ashraf AM under various sections of the Indian Penal Code (IPC), the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences (POCSO) Act, and the Juvenile Justice Act (JJ Act). The prosecution said the girl's stepfather intimidated her by claiming a hidden camera had been implanted in her head and that any attempt to reveal the abuse would be detected. She was also given alcohol before being assaulted.

According to the prosecution, the first accused, from Palakkad, repeatedly assaulted the child between 2019 and 2021 at rented houses in Anamangad and Vallikapattu.

The second accused, the girl's mother from Thiruvananthapuram, is accused of aiding, abetting and encouraging the abuse.

The abuse began after the woman left her husband and started living with her partner in 2019. The two accused also committed sexual intercourse in the presence of the girl. They committed offences as per the POCSO Act, as well as the Juvenile Justice Act. The Court has now convicted both the accused to 180 years of rigorous imprisonment as well as ₹11.75 lakh as fine," the Prosecutor said. If the accused submits the amount before the Court, it will be given to the minor child...

They have been sent to 180 years of rigorous imprisonment, but they have to remain in jail for 40 years," Prosecutor added.

Four militants killed, one arrested in Churachandpur gunfight

Manipur, Agency: In an early morning operation on Tuesday, security forces killed at least four insurgents of banned Kuki outfit United Kuki National Army (UKNA) killed and arrested one in Manipur's Churachandpur district.

An Assam Rifles spokesperson confirmed that the incident occurred at around 6 am while conducting an intelligence-based operation in Khanpi village, Churachandpur, Henglep subdivision which is approximately 80 km west of Churachandpur town. The 21 Para SF were also part of the operation.

Officials in security forces said that the militant group resorted to unprovoked firing on the security forces, and added that forces were searching adjoining areas for more insurgents.

In a statement, UKNA condemned the action of the security forces; some Kuki Zo civil society organisations also expressed condemnation of the incident.

The security officials cited above said the operation came in the week of recent incidents involving UKNA insurgents, including the killing of a village chief, intimidation of locals and attempts to disrupt peace and stability in the region.

Successful neutralisation of these terrorists highlights the Indian Army and Assam Rifles commitment to protecting innocent civilians, mitigating all threats and ensuring peace and security in Manipur", the Assam Rifles spokesperson said in a press note.

Other security officials said that during the gunfight, at least three Assam Rifles personnel also sustained injuries.

Women's Cricket Team Achieves World Victory, But Equality with Men Still Lags Behind

The Indian women's cricket team has filled the entire country with pride by winning the World Cup. This historic achievement has proven to be a significant turning point not only on the playing field but also in the direction of social change. This victory has given Indian women players a new identity, increasing both expectations and responsibilities for them. Women's cricket has come a long way in the last two decades, but inequalities still persist in many areas compared to male cricketers. In the past, the situation of women cricketers was extremely difficult. Until the 1980s, players did not receive match fees. They traveled on concession tickets on trains, stayed in ordinary accommodations, and the quality of the kits they received was also very poor. At that time, women's cricket was run by the "Women's Cricket Association of India," but in 2006, it merged with the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI). After this, improvements in women's cricket began, and today it has established a strong identity at the international level.

In October 2022, the BCCI took a historic decision that women and men players would now be paid equal match fees. That is, both receive equal payment of 15 lakhs for Test matches, 6 lakhs for ODIs, and 3 lakhs for T20s. However, there is still a big difference in the annual contract amounts. Male cricketers receive 7 crores, 5 crores, 3 crores, and 1 crore annually in A+, A, B, and C grades respectively, while the three grades for women players, A, B, and C, are fixed at 50 lakhs, 30 lakhs, and 10 lakhs respectively. The same structure has been implemented in domestic cricket as well, but some differences are still seen in state associations. While male players' salaries in the IPL are in crores, the income of women cricketers in the Women's Premier League (WPL) is limited to 10 lakhs to 3.4 crores. This difference still reflects inequality in the economic aspect of the sport. In terms of facilities, male players also have an advantage. They regularly receive access to better nets, state-of-the-art training, rehabilitation centers, and expert physiotherapists. The number of support staff for women players is still limited. However, there has been improvement in recent years, with the women's team now receiving business class travel and accommodation in five-star hotels, which was previously limited only to the men's team. Male cricketers also have an advantage in terms of medical and recovery facilities. While women players receive equal facilities during major tournaments, this level is not consistently maintained. There is also an inequality in mental health support. Male players have permanent access to mental coaches and counselors, while this facility is still in its nascent stages for the women's team. In terms of brand value and sponsorships, male players continue to dominate. Male players have a significantly larger share in BCCI's media rights and individual endorsement deals. Women players have had limited opportunities so far, although this scenario may gradually change after the launch of the WPL and the World Cup win. Inequality in funding levels still persists. In 2023-24, the BCCI's total budget was approximately 12,000 crore, with less than 1 percent spent on the development of women's cricket. This disparity clearly indicates that women's cricket requires more institutional support. This victory of the Indian women's team is not just a success in one tournament, but a strong call for change. It has shown that with equal opportunities and resources, Indian women players are second to none in world cricket.

Pankaj Jagannath Jaiswal

Dattopant Thengadi was born on November 10, 1920, in Arvi village of Wardha district in Maharashtra. He completed his LLB from Nagpur Law College and his postgraduate studies from Morris College. In 1940, when M.S. Golwalkar Guriji was appointed the second Sarsanghchalak of the RSS, he encouraged young people to dedicate themselves to full-time service as RSS Pracharak to expand the organization's reach. Responding to this invitation, Thengadi ji became an RSS Pracharak in 1942 and remained so until his death at the age of 84 on October 14, 2004. He had no desire for official positions. It was for this reason that he declined the offer of the Padma Bhushan award from the NDA government. Thengadi ji was often called the "silent strategist." He was a visionary architect rather than an overly reactive speaker. He believed that strong institutions, discipline, and clear thinking were essential for long-term change.

Instead of controlling leadership, he worked in the background to nurture it. Those who knew him remember his humility, his unwavering faith in nationalist ideals, and his understanding of philosophy, economics, and history. His work demonstrates a unique blend of cultural connections and economic pragmatism. He was influenced by the global philosophy of Integral Humanism propagated by Dendayal Upadhyaya and India's civilizational ethos.

Global Economic Issues vs. Hindu Economic System

Globalization, which

and human rights violations globally, was a creation of the Western world. The rich are getting richer, and the poor are getting poorer. Most of the world's wealth is held by 1% of the people. According to the OXFAM report presented at the Davos Economic Forum, the wealth of the eight richest people in the world is equal to that of the poorest half of the world's population, i.e., 4 billion people. Furthermore, hunger claims the lives of 8 million people every year, while both curable and incurable diseases also claim a similar number of lives.

Dattopant Thengadi expressed serious concern about the possibility of developed nations exploiting smaller countries. He stated, "Some developed countries (or their ideological leaders) do not want to cooperate in efforts to maintain ecological balance, but rather spread their pollution in the backyard of developing countries." However, this approach will not prevent a global environmental catastrophe for very long, and Western nations will not be spared either. The calamity will ultimately destroy prosperity everywhere because there is only one world. Economic conditions serve as the base, but various superstructural elements—the political and legal forms of class struggles and their consequences, the constitution and legal forms—as well as the reflections of these real struggles in the minds of the participants—political-legal, philosophical theories, and their religious beliefs—all influence the development of historical struggles and, in many cases, determine their form.

In his book, Global Economic System: The Hindu View, Thengadiji argued that "it is imperative to abandon the current version of Eurocentric history, which lacks a sense of proportion, and to initiate a new phase of historical inquiry, a new framework, new contexts, and a new scale of values that will facilitate globalization." Additionally, he emphasized that the Hindu concept of Dharma could provide the best framework for creating an economy that prioritizes the ideal of social well-being rather than the relentless, competitive pursuit of material wealth.

The principles outlined in Hindu religious texts such as the Shastras and Smritis serve as the foundation of Thengadi's Hindu economic system.

Contrary to the "wage-employment" promoted by Western economic ideology, he described the Hindu model of progress and development as having "self-employment" as one of its key features. Such a large number of people entering the workforce cannot be employed by the government. Unlike the "ever-growing army of the proletariat" characteristic of Western economic strategy, the aim is to establish an "ever-growing self-employment sector." The Hindu economic philosophy promotes "free competition in an unmanipulated market where nature is utilized, not exploited" and "moves towards equity and equality." It encourages "complete harmony between the individual, society, and nature." The Western approach, however, results in "continuous conflict between the individual, society, and nature" and "ever-increasing inequalities in society."

According to our traditions, society functions best when all parties fulfill their responsibilities with a sense of mutual respect and shared accountability. The concept of "co-working" reflects this. Employees are not instruments of production in the economic process, but co-creators. The ancient Indian concepts of "respect for labor" and "public welfare" are consistent with the idea that employees should actively participate in management and profit-sharing.

Why Self-Reliance is Necessary

According to Thengadiji, the founder of Swadeshi economics, Swadeshi is about much more than just products and services. It is about the determination to achieve national self-reliance, maintain national independence and sovereignty, and engage in equitable international cooperation. "Swadeshi" is the practical, external expression of patriotic sentiments. Separatist thinking is not the same as the feeling of nationalism. Patriots do not oppose globalization. As long as international cooperation is considered equitable, their argument for national self-reliance is not inconsistent with it. He said that unemployment should be tackled on a war footing.

One of his works, "The Third Way," laid the foundation of "Swadeshi" economics. The only alternative to replace capitalism and communism is an economy and society based on the principles of Dharma and the Hindu approach to life. In his ideal society and economy, self-employment, free competition, equality, and complete harmony between the individual, the community, and nature" and "ever-increasing inequalities in society."

Every culture has its own model. A development model imposed by foreign vested interests or imported from another cultural context can be harmful. Ivan Illich is the renowned author of "Towards a History of Needs." His Mexican experience with the myth of development is described in "Medical Nemesis," "Tools for Conviviality and Deschooling Society." He analyzes the effects of development on the lives of the poor living in rural areas and slums, the erosion of traditional skills and means of livelihood, the decline of community self-reliance, dignity, and solidarity, the destruction of nature, displacement from traditional environments, unemployment, the destruction of nature, displacement from traditional self-sufficient communities into a cash economy, cultural rootlessness, and political corruption.

Although religion and Dharma are not the same, the world must recognize the power of Dharma, not religion, which is considered an opiate in communist analysis. Thengadi ji advanced Hindu economic thought by deeply studying the intellectual foundations of "Dharma," moving beyond the concepts of capitalism and communism. Thus, understanding the true philosophical significance of Prime Minister Narendra Modi's call for "Atmanirbhar Bharat" (Self-Reliant India) and combating this global crisis and its negative effects is only possible by understanding Thengadi ji's perspective.

Nitish Kumar - Messiah of the Poor of Bihar

Sanjay Goswami

Today, very few people know about the next Chief Minister of Bihar, but according to my prediction, Nitish Kumar is most likely to become the next Chief Minister of Bihar, either with the support of the NDA or other parties. Because he knows what to do and when, and a large community in Bihar is supporting him, mostly women. Nitish Kumar is the longest-serving Chief Minister of Bihar, and this is also his ninth term. He is the leader of the Janata Dal (United). Earlier, Nitish had also served as a Union Minister as a member of the Samata Party. He was a member of the Samata Party until 2005 and of the Janata Dal from 1989 to 1994. Nitish first entered politics as a member of the Janata Dal and became an MLA in 1985. A socialist, Nitish, along with George Fernandes, founded the Samata Party in 1994. In 1996, he attempted a comeback and was elected to the Lok Sabha and served as a Union Minister in Atal Bihari Vajpayee's government. His party joined the National Democratic Alliance. In 2003, his party merged with the Janata Dal (United), and Nitish became its leader. In 2005, the NDA secured a majority in the Bihar Assembly, and Nitish became Chief Minister, leading a coalition with the Bharatiya Janata Party. In the 2010 state elections, the ruling coalition achieved a landslide victory. In June 2013, after Narendra Modi was made the Prime Ministerial candidate, Nitish broke ties with the BJP and formed a Grand Alliance with the Rashtriya Janata Dal and the Indian National Congress and joined the United Progressive Alliance. After the party suffered a crushing defeat in the 2014 general elections, Nitish resigned as Chief Minister on May 17, 2014, and was replaced by Jitan Ram Manjhi. However, he attempted a comeback as Chief Minister in February 2015, which led to a political crisis, and ultimately Manjhi had to resign, and Kumar became Chief Minister again. Later that year, the Grand Alliance won a landslide victory in the state elections. In 2017, facing corruption allegations, Nitish broke ties with the RJD and returned to the NDA, leading another coalition with the BJP; his government was re-elected by a narrow margin in the 2020 state elections. In August 2022, Nitish left the NDA and rejoined the Grand Alliance (Mahagathbandhan) and the UPA. In January 2024, Nitish once again left the Grand Alliance and rejoined the NDA. Nitish comes from the socialist school of politics. In his early years as a politician, he was associated with Ram Manohar Lohia, S. N. Sinha, Karpoori Thakur, and V. P. Singh. Nitish participated in Jayaprakash Narayan's movement between 1974 and 1977 and joined the Janata Party led by Satyendra

Narayan Sinha. Unlike Lalu Prasad Yadav, who is considered a populist, Nitish is considered a skilled communicator. Nitish contested and won his first state assembly election from Harnaut in 1985. In the early years, Nitish supported Lalu Prasad Yadav as the Leader of the Opposition in the Bihar Assembly in 1989, but later, after winning his first Lok Sabha seat from Barh in 1996, Nitish joined the BJP. The Janata Dal had previously survived a split when leaders like Nitish and George Fernandes defected to form the Samata Party in 1994, but it remained a rudderless party after Lalu Prasad's decision to form the Rashtriya Janata Dal in 1997. The second split occurred before Rabri Devi came to power, resulting in only two significant leaders remaining in the Janata Dal, namely Sharad Yadav and Ram Vilas Paswan. Paswan was considered an emerging leader of the Dalits and was credited with winning elections by unprecedented margins. His popularity reached the national level when he was given the post of Railway Minister in the United Front government in 1996 and later made the Leader of the House in the Lok Sabha. Their influence was also seen in western Uttar Pradesh, when their followers organized an impressive rally at the call of a new organization called the Dalit Panthers. In the 1999 Lok Sabha elections, the Rashtriya Janata Dal suffered a crushing defeat at the hands of the BJP+JD(U) alliance. The new alliance was leading in 1999 out of 324 assembly constituencies, and it was widely believed that the Lalu-Rabri rule would come to an end in the upcoming Bihar assembly elections. The RJD contested the elections in alliance with the Congress, but this alliance did not work, and the Congress state leadership became convinced that Lalu Prasad's tarnished image after being implicated in the fodder scam had diminished his support base. As a result, the Congress decided to contest the 2000 assembly elections alone.

The RJD had to be content with the Communist parties as alliance partners, but due to complications in seat-sharing within the National Democratic Alliance (NDA), Nitish Kumar separated his Samata Party from the Sharad Yadav and Ram Vilas Paswan factions of the Janata Dal. Differences also arose between the BJP and Nitish Kumar as Nitish Kumar wanted to project himself as the Chief Minister of Bihar, but Nitish Kumar... The RJD emerged as the largest party, and thanks to Lalu Yadav's political maneuvering, Rabri Devi was sworn in as Chief Minister again. The media largely failed to grasp the ground-level polarization in Bihar. Sharad Yadav was also a senior socialist leader, but he lacked a broad popular base. In the 1998 parliamentary elections, the Samata Party and the Janata Dal, which were significantly weakened after the formation of the RJD, began to encroach on each other's vote banks. This led Nitish to merge the two parties, forming the Janata Dal (United). There is no doubt that the upper-caste media has always been anti-Lalu and either lacked knowledge of the ground-level polarization in Bihar or deliberately ignored it. If the election results were not a crushing blow for the RJD, it was mainly due to the bleak picture painted by the media. Against this backdrop, the RJD's defeat seemed like a victory. Even after serving a jail sentence in connection with the 1997 scam, Lalu seemed to relish his role as the lower-caste jester. He argued that the corruption charges against him and his family were a conspiracy by the upper-caste bureaucracy and media elite, who were fearful of the rise of the peasant farming castes.

Who will take the reins of power in Bihar?

Kantilal Mandot

After defeats in every state, the Congress and the Grand Alliance should now accept that this is not the time for them to rule, either at the center or in the states. Given the rise of nationalism worldwide, this is the time for the Bharatiya Janata Party, which came to power riding on the chariot of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh, with Narendra Modi and Amit Shah as its charioteers. The age of this era of nationalism may be slightly shorter than that of globalism and liberalism, but it will not be less than 50 years. Because even Congress leader Rahul Gandhi has said from the stage that the BJP will not be out of power for 50 years. It will depend on whether its charioteers continue to lead the country towards development and greater heights in the same way they have been doing so far, and whether Modi and the BJP continue to make the country inclusive and welfare-oriented. In such a situation, the Congress and the Grand Alliance now have two tasks. They must recognize their role and work towards it, and secondly, they must take some concrete decisions to make their remaining presence effective in the states. Because the Indira Gandhi they are talking about in the Bihar elections, Rahul Gandhi has probably not read her history. Because his ancestors did the same thing as Rahul Gandhi is doing now, trying to cover up their actions by talking about Hinduism and Hindutva. This politics of appeasement has brought Rahul and the Congress party down. The voters are no longer uneducated and illiterate. This Indian society, connected by mobile phones and the internet, is not easily misled. Rahul cannot deceive an educated society. Rahul Gandhi, who targeted Modi,

Donald Trump, Adani, and Ambani in the Bihar elections, seems unaware of what should and shouldn't be said regarding foreign policy. Because Indian foreign policy is currently at its best. External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar's policies have been appreciated by all countries in the world today. A lack of political and practical knowledge leads to difficulties in governing the country. Leaders who have taken India to great heights understand everything. Rahul, who talks about Nalanda University, should know that the Congress party is responsible for the state of this heritage site. The BJP has been in power for only ten years, but the Congress ruled for 60 years. The plight of the backward classes is the doing of the Congress. Now, the Mahagathbandhan (Grand Alliance) has gone to the Dalit, tribal, and Yadav communities for votes. It is the Mahagathbandhan that is responsible for their miserable condition. Political parties in Bihar, after gauging the mood of the voters by releasing their manifestos, have now decided to align themselves with the development-oriented party. Bihar is no longer the Bihar where the public was forced to submit to Lalu's dominance. The arrest of Anant Singh has heated up politics in Bihar. Addressing a rally in Ara, Modi said that the people of Bihar have decided to form an NDA government again. The open display of money and muscle power is rampant in the Bihar Assembly elections. The assets of these strongmen are in the crores. They are contesting the elections. Discussions are underway to establish coordination between the leaders and the public who have arrived to campaign in Munger. Local issues are also dominant. In Bihar, Priyanka and Tejashwi were heard talking about crime. It doesn't suit these parties, who have only given the people a legacy of violence, brutality, and misgovernance since the country's independence, to talk about this. The whole country knows about the anarchy under the Congress. Those who presided over a "jungle raj" are now accusing the Nitish government of the same. It's like the thief accusing the policeman. Women's safety is being reiterated, but the NDA's first priority has always been to ensure the safety of women and girls. This is a time of frustration for the grand alliance. Because the Congress party has been out of power for many years, it needs to shake off the lethargy that has settled into its bones and infuse itself with new energy and ideas. Nature has given it a time for transformation. The Nehru family has held a dominant position since before independence, and after independence, even the Congress members themselves could not imagine their existence without that family. The Nehru-Gandhi family wants to maintain its grip on this country. The senior leaders of the Congress party lack the courage to stand on their own and lead the party forward. This is because the Congress is trying to regain its lost political ground. But the way the country was treated under the guise of secularism is now nothing short of an intrusion for the educated society. Congress leaders brought the royal family into politics, and today they are feeling the sting of that same prince's political immaturity. Rahul Gandhi's erratic statements are the reason why Congress is being marginalized. Rahul asks, "I am making so many accusations, but why doesn't Modi respond to my allegations?" Rahul and the Congress party need to understand this. Because without responding, the decline of Congress is increasing day by day. Instead of fighting on the issues that Congress should be addressing, they are directly attacking Modi. This is not good for Congress. This is a crucial time for the grand alliance. Modi has taken many decisions at the economic and social levels, and he is moving forward. Modi and the BJP have one dream: for India to become a global superpower, but the grand alliance lacks a vision for making the country prosperous. Successfully maintaining power for a third term is impossible without political and diplomatic understanding. India's foreign policy has reached a significant level globally. Meanwhile, Congress is making unsuccessful attempts to gain popularity by criticizing democracy and Modi abroad. Can leaders who target Modi and the Constitution truly strive to maintain the unity and integrity of India? Today, Congress is feeling the lack of leaders with a strong public base. Perhaps Rahul Gandhi shows no interest in active politics. If he did, instead of making false accusations against Modi and hurting the sentiments of millions of people, he would be engaging in issue-based politics. Rahul needs to understand his responsibility. The Congress party lacks leaders with foresight, the ability to make quick decisions, courage, and the capacity to connect with people. In the history of Indian politics, Modi is the most powerful leader to date, one whom even seasoned political strategists cannot defeat. There is no shortage of people who consider Modi godlike. Even Goa, which Congress leader Digvijay Singh (Diggy) had won, was snatched away by the BJP. Many senior Congress leaders are either in the BJP today or have become political recluses. Congress policies today lack any support.

Sparkle Clean Tech and Aquadei Launch Global Alliance to Transform Oil and Gas Water Treatment with Next-Gen Nanobubble Technology

Mumbai, Agency: Sparkle Clean Tech (SCT) (exclusive global licensee of Siemens Energy's oil & gas water-treatment IP) and Aquadei, LLC have formed a strategic alliance to deploy Aquadei's proprietary nanobubble and hydrodynamic cavitation technologies to oil & gas operations globally. This partnership is set to drive advanced water treatment methods, delivering measurable operational, economic and environmental benefits across the industry.

Nanobubble Technology in Oil & Gas: Performance Advantages

Nanobubbles (gas particles smaller than 200 nanometers) feature extraordinary physical surface and interfacial properties that enhance how oil and solids interact in water. When paired with SCT's separation technologies, these ultrafine bubbles enable more efficient separation, lower chemical consumption, and greater process stability.

Unlike traditional flotation systems that rely on buoyancy alone, SCT and Aquadei's approach leverages hybrid nanobubble + microbubble flotation -- a design proven to improve attachment between bubbles and oil droplets.

The fourth T20I between India and Australia will be played today

» The match will begin at 1:45 PM

AGENCY

Gold Coast. The fourth T20I between India and Australia will be played here on Thursday. The two teams are currently tied 1-1 in the series. This match will be crucial for both teams, with the winner gaining a lead in the series. The first match of the series was abandoned due to rain, while the hosts Australia won the second. India won the third match. All eyes will be on opener Shubman Gill in this match. Shubman has yet to score a significant innings in this series. The Indian team appears to have the upper hand in this match, as several Australian players are out preparing for the Ashes.

The absence of Josh Hazlewood in the previous match weakened the hosts' bowling. Opener Travis Head will also be absent in this match. He is playing in the Sheffield Shield in preparation for the Ashes. With several key players missing from the Australian team, India has the best opportunity to win this match and gain the upper hand in the series. A concern for the Indian team is Shubman's form. He hasn't scored a single half-century in six matches during the current tour of Australia. He also failed in the ODI series. He failed to score runs in both matches of the T20 series. Shubman is having trouble with full-length deliveries that show movement. The worrying thing is that Shubman hasn't yet shown his usual form. The positive aspect for the Indian team is that opener Abhishek

Sharma is in good form. The team will expect another aggressive innings from him. Shubman will need to score runs to regain his momentum, considering he will play South Africa after this series. Captain Suryakumar Yadav had good starts in the first and third matches, and he will now look to convert them into big scores. The inclusion of left-arm fast bowler Arshdeep Singh will improve the Indian team's bowling. The presence of spin all-rounder Washington Sundar will strengthen the Indian batting lower down the order. Washington scored an unbeaten 49 off 23 balls in the previous match. On the other hand, the hosts' batting will rely on captain Mitchell Marsh and Tim David. In Head's absence, Matthew Short could open the innings with Marsh. Australia will need to make changes to their bowling department, as Sean Abbott hasn't performed as expected. Either Ben Dwarshuis or Mahli Beardman could be included.

The squad is as follows:

India: Suryakumar Yadav (captain), Abhishek Sharma, Shubman Gill (vice-captain), Tilak Verma, Nitish Kumar Reddy, Shivam Dubey, Axar Patel, Jitesh Sharma (wicketkeeper), Varun Chakravarthy, Jasprit Bumrah, Arshdeep Singh, Harshit Rana, Sanju Samson (wicketkeeper), Rinku Singh, Washington Sundar.

Australia: Mitchell Marsh (captain), Matthew Short, Josh Inglis (wicketkeeper), Josh Philippe (wicketkeeper), Mitchell Owen, Glenn Maxwell, Matt Kuhnemann, Adam Zampa, Mahli Beardman, Ben Dwarshuis, Xavier Bartlett, Nathan Ellis, Marcus Stoinis.

Virat Kohli turns 36, receives congratulations from fans

AGENCY

New Delhi: Indian cricket team's legendary cricketer Virat Kohli turned 36 today. Fans and fellow players showered him with congratulations on his birthday. Virat now plays only ODI cricket, having already retired from Tests and T20s. Even at 36, he remains fit and aspires to play in the 2027 ODI World Cup. Even today, despite playing only one format, he remains one of the best cricketers in the world. Virat is not called the best batsman of the current generation for nothing. He has played many big innings in his career. In the 2012 tri-series between Sri Lanka and Australia, Sri Lanka, batting first, scored 320 runs. The Indian team was trailing in the series and needed to win at all costs to gain bonus points. The target of 321 runs had to be achieved in 40 overs, which was a very difficult task. However, Virat, along with Gautam Gambhir and then Suresh Raina, batted so well that the Indian team scored 321 runs in just 36.4 overs, winning the match and earning bonus points. In this match, Virat scored 133 runs in 86 balls with the help of 16 fours and 2 sixes at a strike rate of 154.65. This innings of Virat's was one of the most memorable innings of his career. In the Asia Cup 2012, Virat led the Indian team to victory by playing a brilliant inning of 183 runs against Pakistan. In this match, Pakistan had scored 329 runs while batting first, but in response, Virat's brilliant batting helped the Indian team win by 7 wickets. This is Virat's highest score in ODIs so far. Virat played a brilliant inning for the Indian team in the Adelaide Test on the tour of Australia. Batting first in this match, Virat Kohli scored 517 runs. In response, the Indian team could only manage 444 runs, giving Australia a 73-run lead. Australia scored 290 runs in their second innings and, after declaring, set India a target of 364 runs in the fourth innings on the difficult Adelaide pitch. Virat Kohli then played a brilliant innings alongside Murali Vijay. Murali was dismissed for 99, while Virat scored 145 runs off 175 balls. However, after the two were dismissed, the Indian team was all out for 315 runs. Thus, Australia won the match by 48 runs. Who can forget Virat Kohli's 149-run innings in the Birmingham Test during the 2018 England tour? Virat Kohli's century on a difficult pitch helped India win by 31 runs. This century was also significant for Virat because he had previously failed miserably in England. He stunned everyone with his 149 in Birmingham. Virat Kohli's 82-run innings against Pakistan in the ICC T20 World Cup 2022 played a crucial role. Chasing a target of 160 against Pakistan, Team India lost four wickets for 31 runs. Virat Kohli hit a massive six off Haris Rauf to give India the victory.

AGENCY

Riyadh: Defending champion Coco Gauff of the United States produced a dominant performance on Tuesday, defeating Jasmine Paolini of Italy 6-3, 6-2 to record her first WTA Finals win and also send Paolini packing. The 21-year-old American player Gauff committed 17 double faults in her previous match against compatriot Jessica Pegula, but this time she committed only three and dominated the entire match. Gauff said after the match, "I knew this win was essential to stay in the tournament. If I had lost, I would have been eliminated." In the first set, Gauff took a 3-0 lead in just 10 minutes. Paolini struggled for nine minutes to win the next game, saving three break points. However, Gauff then played a brilliant return to take a 5-3 lead and win the first set. Gauff's strategy proved effective in the second set as well, as she constantly chased Paolini from one end of the court to the other.

As a result, Gauff broke twice in a row to take a 5-2 lead and won the match with a strong serve. Gauff said, "I felt I served smart today. Although I don't think Jasmine was 100% fit."
